

DRIVE TO TURN GOLDEN CORN INTO GOLDEN DIVIDEND

DISMANTLING OF STREET CAR LINE NEARLY COMPLETE

Old Cars to be Made Into Cottages and Rabbit Nursery

Some of the old street cars which for many years carried passengers over the city and interurban electric railway system of the Sterling, Dixon & Eastern railway, are to enter a new branch of service. They are to be used as summer cottages along Rock river, the Hudson of the west, in some instances. The 104 interurban car is to be dismantled and taken to Grand Detour where it will be converted into a summer cottage on the farm of F. M. Johnson, who has purchased it. Another of the cars has been purchased by two of the state department of highways engineers and has been moved to a point near Grand Detour where it is to be converted into a cottage. A third car is also to be placed on a camp site near Grand Detour as a cottage.

One of the old interurban cars of the 100 type has been purchased by a Sterilizing and after being dismantled, will be converted into a rabbit hatchery near that city. Some of the cars have already been dismantled, the motors removed and all of the running gear detached and sold. The big 104 interurban car will complete its period of usefulness next week.

Complete Dismantling.
The Pass Company of Chicago, which is wrecking the lines of the company, will have completed the dismantling of the interurban line by tomorrow evening. At that time it is expected that the work will have progressed as far east as Galena avenue. Work was being finished in the vicinity of the Borden plant today.

Plans were being made today for the removal of the overhead trolley wire and supporting cables Sunday, when it was expected that traffic would be lighter than during the week. It is expected that the wrecking crew will start work on North Galena avenue early Sunday morning and hurry operations so as to clear all of the overhead equipment on Galena avenue to the first street in a single day. The big task confronting the dismantling contractor in Dixon is the overhead wiring on the Galena avenue bridge.

It is expected that all of the overhead equipment will be removed and the Pass company will complete its work dismantling of the company's lines by the end of next week. The current on the street railway system will be shut off for the last time tomorrow evening to permit the dismantling of the lines in Dixon.

Claims Proof Apostle Paul Had Stenographer

Chicago, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Apostle Paul had a stenographer who took down his letters in short hand, Henry O. Lloyd of the University of Chicago declared in a thesis today. This fact, he said, was revealed through recent studies of the Greek papyri bearing the original scriptures.

That the writing of shorthand in those days was an established trade is shown in Mr. Lloyd's thesis, through a contract of 155 A. D., in which a former magistrate of oxyrhynchus apprenticed his slave to a shorthand writer. The principle of abbreviation used was not clear, which has complicated the work of modern translators considerably.

Errors that often accompany dictation may be attributed to cause for many seeming inconsistencies in the New Testament, he points out. The stenographer or "seniographor" may have been day dreaming or planning a feast for "the evening" while he or she was recording the letter.

Woman Dropped from W. C. T. U. for Dry Law Attack

Dundell, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Mrs. Bertha Shippen Irving, dropped yesterday from membership in the Camden County branch of the W. C. T. U., in a statement today reiterated her opposition to the present prohibition law.

"Prohibition is only a method of acquiring temperance in this country," she said. "The terms are not synonymous. If there are safer methods of improving conditions, we must accept them."

All who work for temperance work for the good of future generations. Every bootlegger, however, works and votes for prohibition."

Mahomet High School Suspended from Ass'n.
Champaign, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—The Mahomet high school has been suspended from the Illinois State High School Athletic Association indefinitely, according to C. W. Whitten, of DeKalb, state manager. The suspension was brought on by playing ineligible men in football during the past season and for conniving with other teams. It was said other teams waived protests and permitted Mahomet to play ineligible men. St. Joseph high, Oakwood high and Pantou high were censured for knowing they played against the ineligible men.

Remembered

Now Carl Schmidt of Springfield, Ill., has been notified that the other boy, William Schroeder, has died and made him sole heir to his million-dollar estate. Schroeder was a bachelor; Schmidt is married and has a son.

GRAVE ANXIETY FELT IN PARIS AS RIVERS RISE

Situation Grows Grave in Suburbs of the French Capital

BULLETIN
Amsterdam, Jan. 8.—(AP)—A dyke on the Yssel river near Zalkin in the province of Over-Yssel, is reported to have burst this morning. The water is rushing over Old Brook to the Polder (part of the Zuider Zee) and threatening several villages.

Paris, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The river Seine continues to rise. Workmen are making cement and sand bag barricades at all vulnerable points along the quays. These, however, cannot prevent flooding by infiltration or places in the city at a lower level than the water. The outlook consequently is regarded with anxiety.

The situation in the suburbs both up and down stream, is growing graver. Some of the rivers in the provinces again are rising, notably the Saone in the vicinity of Lyons. Generally, however, the situation shows improvement.

In Belgium the flood conditions in the north are as bad as ever. In the remainder of the flooded areas conditions are slowly returning to normal.

Maine Potato Growers May Be Able to Clean Up

Houlton, Me., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Aroostook County potato farmers are talking in terms of millions today, for the first time in five years. If the central market price of $6.50 a barrel holds the value of last year's crop of $12,570,000 bushels from the "world's potato center" will exceed $40,000,000.

The Aroostook farmer will not get rich, but he will pay a good part of his fertilizer and bank indebtedness. In 1919 when potatoes sold for $10 a barrel and again in 1920 when good prices prevailed, luxury buying was general. But not so this year. Hard times taught the farmer thrift. He is paying his old bills.

ARREST SIX MEN FOR ROBBERY OF ALTON, ILL., P. O.

$34,000 Robbery May 12, 1924 Cleared up by Agents

Alton, Ill., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Six men are under arrest on charge of robbing the Alton postoffice of $34,000 in postage stamps May 12, 1924, the arrests being the result of investigations made by two postoffice inspectors, H. G. Theurer of Springfield, Rono Keefe of Decatur and Joseph Schroeder of East St. Louis. The men are Joseph Melling of Springfield and Ray Larsson, Joseph Meyer, Ben Simons, Robert Dooling and Joseph Marino, all of Alton. One of the men has made a signed confession, it was said by Postoffice Inspector Theurer.

Men who robbed the Alton postoffice have expected to be able to get a $90,000 payoff, it was said and they laid their plans to hold up the mail messenger or to rob the postoffice. They concluded the latter plan would be the safest to try. They evidently had wrong information that the payroll shipment had been made as there was nothing in the postoffice that night but the postage stamps, not even much money, as the day's receipts had been banked.

The case has been under investigation for many months and the result of their investigation was the finding of indictments against the six men named in the United States court at Springfield on Thursday. A corps of deputy marshals with Inspector Theurer, Ramsbottom and Keefe arrived in Alton late Thursday night and succeeded in picking up five there and Melling had already been arrested at Springfield.

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Rates charged by express companies for transporting money were held reasonable today by the interstate commerce commission in dismissing a complaint of the New York Federal Reserve Bank.

New England Pioneer Near Death From Many Burns

Boston, Mass., Jan. 8.—(AP)—Dr. James A. Day, a pioneer in the use of the X-Ray in New England, is fighting for his life at the Massachusetts General Hospital, a martyr to science. Continual exposure of his hands to the same rays which in modern practice have brought relief to hundreds of patients has led to the amputation of his right arm at the elbow and three fingers of his left hand.

Science has as yet been unable to discover a cure for over exposure and but slight hope is held out for Dr. Day's recovery. Infection, which set in six years ago from X-ray burns, is still spreading despite a series of six operations which started with the fingers of his left hand and has ended with the loss of the right forearm.

Dr. Day, who is 55 years old, is thought to have small chance for recovery.

He afterwards devoted his attention to the comic strip and has become famous in that line.

The pictures were recently sold at auction when the Illinois Club voted to disband. The largest entitled "The Gumps" was purchased by Mr. Stewart. GALENA MAN WAS MURDERED DURING DRUNKEN DEBAUCH

Slayer Held to Grand Jury Without Bail After Hearing

Galena, Ill., Jan. 8.—Frank Biehl, 50, is held without bail in the Jo Daviess county jail as a result of the killing of James Malone, 45, whom Biehl shot to death after a quarrel in Biehl's home Wednesday night where Biehl, his wife, a Mrs. Lau, of California, Samuel Kittoo and, it is alleged, one or two other men, were enjoying a "party". That there had been some drinking prior to the quarrel that ended in the death of Malone was generally rumored and State's Attorney F. J. Campbell said this was being investigated.

According to witnesses, Malone used language in the presence of the women to which Biehl objected. They had a lively argument during which Biehl charged, Malone declared he would "get" him sooner or later. Biehl finally left the room, but reappeared with a 20-gauge shotgun. He fired at Malone, the charge tearing off Malone's face and killing him instantly.

Biehl then called Policeman Barnett and told of what had taken place. He was arrested and turned over to the sheriff.

A charge of first degree murder will be brought against Biehl, State's Attorney Campbell said, and the trial probably will take place at the February term of the circuit court. He was bound over, without bail, after a brief preliminary hearing.

Malone was but four feet distant from the muzzle of the gun when it was fired, one of the witnesses testified at the coroner's inquest, and the charge of shot mutilated his head in a frightful manner.

Malone, Biehl and the others connected with the affair are well known in Galena and vicinity.

"EAT SURPLUS" IS SLOGAN OF GREAT CAMPAIGN NOW ON

Corn Days and Meetings Throughout Belt is Plan of Agents

Chicago, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The "Staff of Life" has been changed from wheat to corn in the grain belt.

The golden corn, one of America's contributions to the world's food supply, is going on midwestern tables in every conceivable form—corn "Pone", corn meal mush, corn fritter, corn syrup and even corn sugar.

Faced with a corn surplus, fan leaders hope in this way to turn the gold of the corn into the gold of a dividend for the grower, or at least to provide a means of working off excess supplies.

Corn days and corn meetings are planned throughout the central west, with one of the first scheduled at Morris, tomorrow. A feature of the Morris affair will be a five corn dinner, running the gastronomic scale from corn fed beef, corn gravy, succotash, corn bread and corn syrup down to coffee sweetened with corn sugar.

To Eat Up Surplus.

While plans are on foot to literally eat up the corn surplus, the International Harvester Co., has announced a program involving corn that goes back to the most primitive means of commercial trading—barter. The corn will trade implements to farmers for corn.

The basis is $1 a bushel for number 2 corn at Chicago, a price which the company believed would be reached in the next six months. May corn closed yesterday at a spread of 83½¢ at Kansas City to 86½¢ at Chicago. July was quoted at 85½¢ at Kansas City and 88½¢ at Chicago.

If corn goes above $1 a bushel before the farmer is called upon to deliver next May, June and July, he can sell it elsewhere and settle for his implement purchases in the regular way. The offer applies only to bona fide purchases covering the farmer's reasonable requirements and is to hold good until further notice.

To Hold "Corn Days."

Sam H. Thompson, new president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, has sent bulletins to every farm bureau in the corn country, recommending the holding of "corn days" as a means of stimulating consumption of corn products. Mr. Thompson asserted that from good results already obtained he had no doubt the extension of the movement throughout the corn belt would materially relieve the immediate situation.

A particular drive is being made to popularize corn sugar. The product of the maize fields looked as good as the product of corn and best to residents who bought 2,000 pounds of residents who bought 2,000 pounds of corn sugar in 90 percent of the farmers' homes.

Ice at Skating Park is Improved by Week's Thaw

PROMISES—

By Hal Cochran.

I guess we've all found, as we've traveled around, that a promise is easy to make. We make up our mind that we'll do things, but find that they also are easy to break.

A friend asks you this, or a friend asks you that. It's a favor that's easy to do. You promise, "Why sure!" But your memory's poor, and the promise goes slipping by you.

The easy way out is to promise, no doubt, and then just forget all about it. This gets you in Dutch, and your word's not worth much, since the best folks can do is to doubt it.

It pays, in the end, when your friends can depend on the things that you say you will do. When your promise is heard, they will bank on your word, 'cause they know that you're gonna come through.

Most Interesting Discussion on Prayer

The Woman's Missionary Society was delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. James Kindig Thursday afternoon with eighteen members in attendance; the president, Mrs. B. H. Cleaver, presiding over the business session.

The meeting opened with song. Mrs. Cleaver then offered prayer. Minutes were accepted as read, also the treasurer's quarterly report. The offering was then taken.

Mrs. Ward Hall took charge of the program. "The Devotional" was given by Mrs. E. L. McGinnis on Prayer, taken from the book, "Altar Songs."

Following this, Mrs. Chas. Mumma read an interesting article on Prayer and Missions, by Dr. James Denney, who says, "It is only as Christ lives in us, and we in Him, that we are concerned about the accomplishment of His eternal purpose. What ever deepens the life of God in the soul will issue in prayer for the spread and triumph of the Gospel in all lands."

Three questions were asked:

First—What is prayer? Mrs. Cleaver answered this, "Prayer is talking with God, a communion, wherein we ask for the things we need or wish to accomplish, and thank Him for blessings received."

Second—How much do we believe in prayer? Answered by Mrs. Reagan, "We cannot expect to get much out of prayer, unless we put much in it; God says, 'They draweth nigh unto me with their mouths, but their heart is far from me.' Then we are told to 'Draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith.' Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you."

Third—Do Christians pray enough? This was taken up for discussion by the society, and decided upon, that if we did pray enough, greater things would be accomplished, for God and His kingdom Christians need to pray more.

Following the benediction a social hour was spent, enjoying music by radio. Dainty refreshments were served by the committee, Mrs. Chas. Mumma, Mrs. John Nettz and Mrs. Kindig.

The February meeting is to be Guest Day.

Installation of Officers

Am. Legion Auxiliary

The American Legion Auxiliary

Dixon Post No. 12, held their regular meeting Wednesday afternoon in G. A. R. hall, with a very good attendance. After the opening service Mrs. Bell Price of Mount Morris, district committee woman, was escorted to the president's station by the color bearers.

Mrs. Price gave a splendid talk on the work being done by the American Legion Auxiliary. She especially urged membership and said that the American Legion Auxiliary was the women's largest organization in America.

At the close of the remarks by Mrs. Price the installation of the newly elected officers took place, with Mrs. Price as the installing officer; Mrs. Myrtle George, musician; and Mrs. Jane Kelley, sergeant-at-arms. Mrs. Ethel Preston, Mrs. Josephine Fallstrom, Mrs. Lou Withers and Mrs. Georgiana Drew, color bearers. The officers installed are as follows:

President—Mrs. Corabel George.

First vice president—Mrs. Mary Schmucker.

Second vice president—Mrs. Martha Witzleb.

Treasurer—Mrs. Catherine Kelley.

THE NEW PINK

"Enfant Pink," the new shade, is sharing honors almost evenly with white at every important social event. Pink and gold lace scarfs and black hats seem to form the natural complement to gowns of this shade.

ENSEMBLE

The two or three-piece ensemble and frocks giving the ensemble effect are the smartest models seen on the streets now. For either street or afternoon wear they are charming.

METAL CLOTH

A stunning frock recently introduced carries out the two-piece effect with a sort of jacket of silver metal cloth, cut with a wrap effect and the "tail" which is being featured abroad reaching nearly to the floor, caught in a loop at the right side. The skirt was of white.

BLACK LACE

A most charming negligee of black, filmy lace trimmed with maribou recently has made its appearance.

CHIFFONS

Printed chiffons in pastel shades, applied on pale pink chiffon are proving unusually popular for southern wear. The long full sleeve tied in at the wrist, which is the latest touch of fashion, is seen in nearly all these models.

TAPESTRY BAGS

The tapestry bag, in needle point, petit point and Aubusson is holding its own in the shop windows. The prices range so that they are within reach of almost everyone, and they are very smart.

O'BRIEN BOY

THIN AND PALE

In a Little Over Two Months

Gained Eleven Pounds.

As a body builder, an appetite creator, and to make weak, skinny boys and girls sturdy, strong and full of energy there is nothing like Cod Liver Oil—any physician will tell you that.

But it's vile, horrible stuff to take, and is apt to upset any stomach, so now doctors are prescribing and wise parents are buying McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—sugar coated, and as easy to take a candy.

The son of George G. O'Brien of Alahwah, N. J., was thin and pale and did not get enough nourishment from his food. In a little over two months, he gained eleven and one-half pounds, and feels and looks one hundred per cent. better.

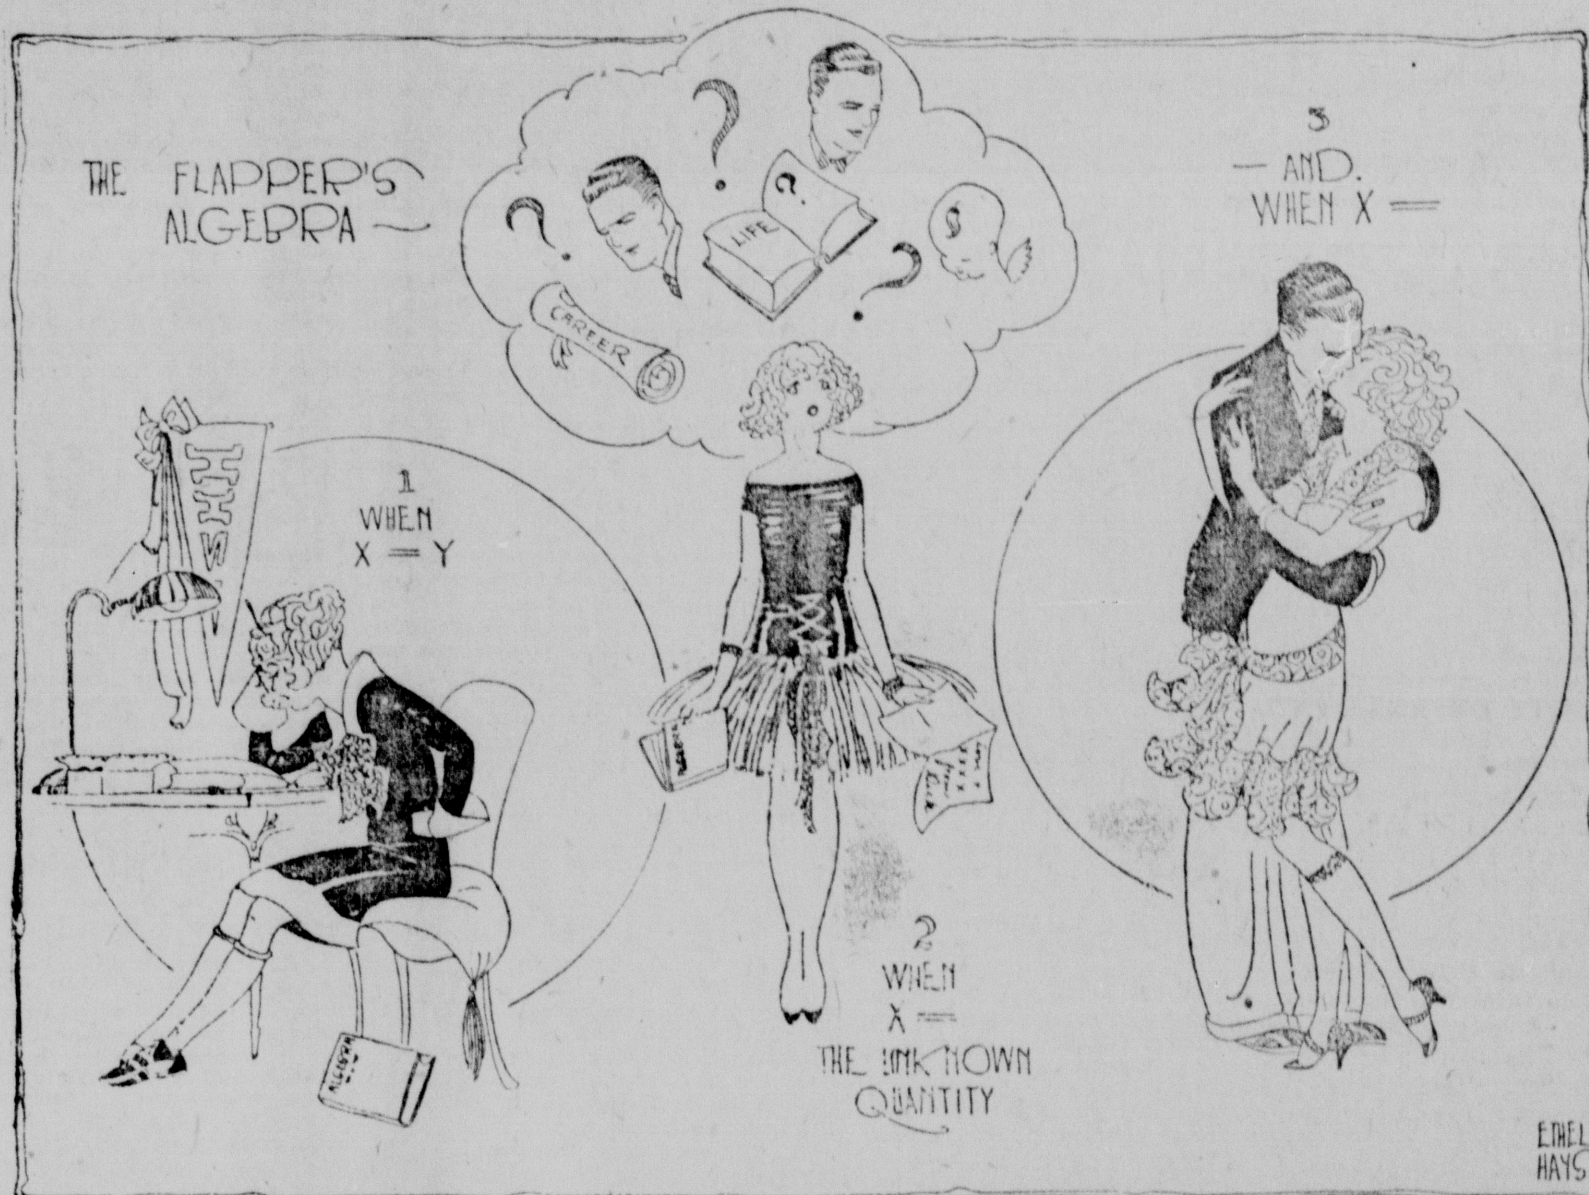

Mothers, if any of your children are weak, thin or puny, give them these tablets, as directed for 30 days, and watch them gain flesh and health from day to day—they seldom fail—but if the unusual should happen and you are not supremely satisfied with results—your druggist is authorized to return your money.

Be sure—always—to get the original and genuine McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets—60 tablets 60 cents at Rowland's Pharmacy, Dixon and Rochelle, or any druggist in America. Thousands of boxes sold daily.

Rockford Artists

Concert Company

The Rockford Artists Concert Company of Rockford, Ill., appeared before an unusually large audience at the Dixon Elks club last evening. The members of the company proved that they were all that the name infers, each being an artist and their program was highly entertaining. Vera Peterson Decker, violinist, was probably the outstanding star of the company, her renditions being masterful and exceptionally well given. Jane Harris, contralto, was another outstanding artist in the company. Fern Holton, soprano, Wesley Wilcox, baritone and Lillian Smith, accompanist, were the other members.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS—

CARE OF SINK

Use a strainer in the sink. Keep pipes free from bits of food. Avoid grease and greasy water. Wash sink with hot, soapy water each time it is used, and rinse with cold water. Flush pipes thoroughly once a week with hot water, following with a strong solution of sal soda and much hot water, then rinse with cold water. If pipes are stopped increase the strength of the soda solution, or use a solution of potash.

RINSE WELL

White clothing should be well rinsed before placing in bluing water. Some types of bluing will make tiny rust spots on the material if the soap has not been thoroughly removed.

WOULD WIPE OUT INSANITY DEFENSE.

John B. Waite of the University of Michigan Law school, speaking before the convention of the Association of American Law Schools in Chicago announced a belief that we'll all have to come to if protection of life is to be afforded to citizens generally, no one of whom can now claim that he is free from sudden attack and murder by an insane person. He said: "If a man is guilty of murder, beyond any reasonable doubt, and the statutes of his state fix death as the punishment, then that man should be executed whether sane or insane." Does it sound a bit brutal? It may at first to some people. But an insane person is very likely to be brutal, and he is brutal when he commits murder. Then think how many people would decide not to become insane in order to commit murder.

FARMERS, OLD AND NEW.

An eastern or middle-western farmer hardly recognizes the word "farm" any more. On the Pacific coast there seem to be no more farms at all, in the old sense. The word "ranch" is applied to land on which cattle, sheep, hogs or chickens are raised, and also to land raising grain or vegetables. A "farm" is a place devoted to raising freak products, such as rabbits, ostriches, lions, frogs, pigeons, etc. It is much the same in the south, except that in that section a "ranch" is likely to be a plantation. What is dubbed a farm in Florida or Mississippi or Louisiana may raise as crops frogs or alligators. So a fine old word degenerates. There is degeneration, too, in the sturdy and picturesque word "ranch." What would the superranchers of a generation ago have thought of a "fruit ranch" or "turkey ranch?"

THOSE VIRTUOUS WETS.

Democrats in congress, finding the stand and reputation of President Coolidge well-nigh invulnerable, are tryngsly to discredit him over the shoulders of his official cabinet family. They have selected Secretary Mellon as the right man to attack. Representative Blanton, Texas, democrat, and enemy of prohibition, recommended in the house at Washington that the prohibition unit be removed from the control of Secretary Mellon, because "he can not properly enforce liquor laws he does not believe in." Representative Lowry of Missouri, another democrat, struck a little blow at the wets when he said that his conviction was confirmed "that those who kick because prohibition doesn't prohibit would kick more vigorously as it did." When the wets asked that Mellon be divorced from the prohibition unit because he's too wet, aren't they in an anomolous role? Isn't it a wet that they want in the dry unit to throw his influence on their side?

A PRACTICAL SCHOOL FRILL.

If household economics and domestic science courses in the schools were confined to teaching girls how to bake cakes and boil eggs, there might be more justification for such complaints as that of a school trustee who declares that daughters should learn cooking from their mothers. An intelligent young person might even learn how to do those things by following the instructions in a good cook book. But domestic science courses do more than teach the preparation of specific dishes. They teach the chemistry of cooking, food values, dietetics, efficiency in planning and marketing, and a good many other valuable things that the housewife of an older day had to learn usually by trial and experiment, with many of them still unable to teach their daughters. On the whole, such courses are excellent things for the future of American homes, and if occasionally they get a bit too theoretical and frilly, still most of the time they are kept to useful and practical lines. The old-fashioned citizen who rails against them usually doesn't understand the situation. Even the picturesque rickshaw is disappearing from Japan, being crowded out by Henry. Japan is trying to save some of them by lifting the rickshaw tax. The height of something would be driving through California with a Florida pennant on your car. Hunt the bright side. If you had a few more friends maybe they would borrow your money. The coal situation could be worse. It would be awful if 36 inches made a coal yard. The auto helps people. With so many autos you have to keep on clean underwear in case you go to the hospital. Texas isn't the state she once was. It took three men to shoot one policeman recently. Pittsburg jail has a radio. Bet weather reports and time signals make the prisoners mad. A bootlegger leads a hard life. So many of his good friends die suddenly.

"I should say so," beamed Ub Glub stroking his beard.

In came the man with two noses bearing a large bunch of catnip on a silver platter. It was a good thing that he hadn't forty noses because he already had such a fine opinion of himself that his wig kept slipping backwards, from holding his head so high. Suddenly the cat smelled the catnip, and with a loud "Mew" he made a jump and knocked the platter out of Mister Nosey's hand. The catnip flew all over the room and the platter fell with a clatter. At the same time the scissors, which were hidden in one of the everlasting umbrellas, jumped out and fell to the floor, just missing the cat's nose by half an inch. But in falling they cut off, not one, but seven of the cat's whiskers. Up jumped Ub Glub at once. "Good for you, Mister Nosey," he cried. "You are as smart as the brave little tailor who killed seven flies with one blow. I couldn't have done better myself. As a reward you shall be promoted to my chief orrass polisher, when I get my new fire engine to ride in." Nancy and Nick looked at each other and then at Inch O' Pie. And Inch O' Pie looked at Nancy and then at Nick. And then they all looked at each other. What was this Ub Glub was saying? A new fire engine? He had said that he wanted a new fire engine, but nobody had promised him one. Poor little Inch O' Pie was thinking, "It's all my fault. I brought the Twins here to this queer place. What if Ub Glub should take a notion to be mean? What if he should press a button and slide his silly old castle back into the ground with all of us in it. Oh dear! What will the Fairy Queen say when she hears of it! Oh dear me!"

But Ub Glub the Nib Nob of Nobody's Land was speaking. He was saying: "Here are the seven whiskers my dears. See! Each one of them has three ends! Seven times three—how's that for luck?" "Pretty good," said Nick, putting the seven whiskers into his knife pocket. "I should say so," beamed Ub Glub stroking his beard. Or did he have a beard? Yes—I think he had two. Or maybe he didn't have any. But anyway he beamed and said, "I should say so." Then he added, "Now, where's my fire engine?" "Why—we—you see, we didn't happen to bring one with us," said Nancy. "What!" cried Ub Glub. "Not bring a fire engine? People always take presents to kings, and they've given them everything but a fire engine! I was sure you would bring one! It was the only thing left. Give me back those magic whiskers!" "Yes, give them back at once," said Two Noses. "At once," said the cat, as he stooped rolling in the catnip and arched his back again like a Chinese bridge. "At once," said the Third Princess, stamping her foot. "If we have a fire engine to pump water all over everything, I can make all the mud-pies I want." But Nick held onto the whiskers. He never offered to hand them back! "Oh, ho!" cried Ub Glub. "Then I am not to have my fire engine, am I?" And he started toward the row of buttons in the wall. "Oh, dear!" thought Inch O' Pie. "Here's where we all disappear." But something wonderful happened just then. (To Be Continued)

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRES-COTT TO LITTLE MARQUISE, CARE OF THE SECRET DRAWER—CONTINUED

You know, Little Marquise, that I am very fond of my husband, I could not be otherwise, living with him through joy and sorrow and high days and low days. He is the father of my child and I have grown so used to him that he is that part of myself which I presume is meant when they speak of married people as "one." We have grown into the habit of each other. I have to acknowledge, however, that probably for him as for me— Just as I was writing, something that perhaps I should not and something that consequently I will not, Sally came into the room and told me that Jack wanted me. I hastily told this letter and slipped it into my desk. Sally did not pay very much attention to me. She seemed greatly engrossed in her own thoughts and after a great deal of hesitation, she said: "I wish you could persuade your husband, Leslie, not to go on with that moving picture stunt at the mill." "What do you mean, Sally?" I asked. "Surely you do not think lightning can strike again in the same place? The man who engineered the other accident has been discharged. All the other employees, I think, are loyal, are they not?" "Al-lant. b-q. npeB" "Oh, yes. I presume they are. I don't think there are any potential murderers among them. I do not believe I can explain to you what I do mean, Leslie, but I have such a queer hunch. You see I have worked long enough about a steel mill to know that it is a very dangerous place. Every man must have his whole mind on his work. Why Leslie, in your father's time I knew a man to be turned up in a twinkling of an eye when the molten steel was turned over him. There was nothing left by which one could even realize that a moment before there had been a man erect and alive in that place. There was only a hot seething mass that not one could get near until it cooled. "Every man in the mill will be curious about the moving picture people and will not have their minds on their work. I wish that Jack had not given his consent to the project." I looked at Sally in amazement. As a rule she was not afraid of anything that might be suggestive of something that might happen. She seemed quite strange to me today. Was it what she said or the way she said it that made the whole thing so queer? (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

OWDEN WILL BE SPEAKER AT MEET IN GRUNDY COUNTY

Farmers of Corn Belt Invited to Meet on Saturday

Morris, Ill., Jan. 8.—Focusing attention on the critical plight of the farmers in the corn belt, a meeting of the Illinois corn counties has been called to meet in Morris tomorrow at which former Governor Frank O. Lowden and George N. Peck, former president of the Moline Trust Company, will be the principal speakers. With virtually every farmer in the corn belt facing bankruptcy if present prices continue, the Grundy County Farm Bureau federation, Grundy County Bankers Association, Morris Chamber of Commerce and Morris Rotary Club, hope by this meeting to set the public so graphically that prompt measures can be taken to bring about proper legislation.

The purpose of the meeting is three fold: to draw attention to the real situation among corn farmers; to increase the consumption of corn products as one means of wiping out the surplus, and to voice the demand for the entire corn belt for remedial legislation.

Virtually every corn farmer within traveling distance of Morris is expected to gather here on that day. Then, every phase of the corn situation will be discussed by numerous authorities. Special invitations have been extended to every farm bureau leader in the Illinois corn belt as well as all farmers able to attend the meeting.

The meeting will open in the morning with a series of talks on corn products, their manufacture, healthful benefits and value to the corn grower. Section after section of sugar and other products.

A free dinner will be served to every farmer at the meeting at noon made largely of corn product. Churches and other organizations are preparing to handle the biggest crowd of hungry farmers ever assembled in the city.

Liberty Street, the main street of the city, is being turned into a corn field with corn stalks and shocks stretching the length of the thoroughfare. Every merchant in the city is preparing to dress his windows with corn products.

An educational campaign is being prepared to begin immediately and continue even after the meeting to bring before both the town and farm housewife the healthful values of the varied corn products. Particular stress is being placed on corn sugar whose substitution for imported cane sugar from Cuba would entirely wipe out the present surplus that has driven down prices.

REDS SADLY IN NEED OF CATCHER TO HELP HARGRAVE

Cincinnati Team to Present Some New Talent This Year

Cincinnati, Jan. 8.—(AP)—The play or purchases of the Cincinnati Reds this winter have been few, but Manager Jack Hendricks thinks his new men will strengthen three important positions, first base, shortstop and left field.

The catching problem is still unsolved and the strength of the pitching department hinges largely on the return to form of Carl Mays, the submarine twirler.

Hendricks went to California this week for the minor league magnates, looking still for talent, especially a catcher, of which the Reds are in need to back up "Bub" Hargrave. He admitted he probably would find nothing better than a scout or a coach.

New First Baseman.

At first base, the Reds will present Jimmy Huggins, obtained from Fort Smith of the Western Association. Walter Holke was the regular at that post last season, but Hendricks is enthusiastic over the record of Huggins in the Western loop.

A. Kleban, the first base reserve, was sent to St. Paul in a trade for Walter Christensen whom Hendricks plans to start in the left garden. Eddie Roush and Walker, Christensen led the association last year in base stealing.

A former rookie, Frank Zimmer, was brought back from the Seattle club of the Pacific Coast League to fill a gap at short stop. A thorough seasoning in the minors is said to have converted him into a high class performer.

Fail to Get Catcher.

Efforts to get Johnny Gooch or Earl Smith, receivers, from the Pittsburgh Pirates, failed and the veteran Ivy Wingo is about all the Reds have to rely on as a reserve catcher.

The pitching staff is just the same as last year, but Hendricks thinks he has one of the surest crews of regulars in the game. But again reserves are lacking and for the 4th regular Hendricks does not know whether he will have Mays in shape. With Luque, Rixey and Donohue the Reds have a fine first string trip with Jackie Mays to fall back on.

Owens August Herrmann also has been unsuccessful as yet in closing with the city of Cincinnati for the plot on which he hopes to construct a greater Redland field with a grandstand seating about 50,000 persons. The purchase seems delayed for another year at least.

$9.50 DOWN--$2.50 MONTHLY

The Telegraph has secured a beautiful tract of land in Sawyer county, northern Wisconsin, eight miles from Hayward, the county seat, surrounded by wonderful clear water lakes which abound in large "Muskies," pike, bass and other species of game fish. This splendid tract is being subdivided into ample sized lots for homes, cabins or camp sites. In order to obtain new readers and to give present subscribers a real opportunity, we have made it possible to supply beautiful sites for the ridiculously small price of $39.50 per lot. The property is located on Grindstone lake, approximately 360 miles from Dixon. It is easily accessible from Dixon on State Trunk Highways Nos. 26, 31, 13, 12 and 27. The property is cut-over land with plenty of virgin timber of pine, hemlock and different hardwoods. The land overlooks the lake with a rising bank of from eighteen to thirty feet. The lake beach is of fine, clean sand which in many places extends out into the lake for a distance of hundreds of feet on a gradual slope into the water. Deer and wild game are plentiful.

Grindstone--The Lake Beautiful

GRINDSTONE LAKE is one of the most beautiful in northern Wisconsin. The water is clear as crystal. The lake is approximately four miles long and two miles in width. "Muskies," bass, pickerel and other game fish are plentiful. Several trout streams empty into the lake. Swimming and boating facilities are of the best.

Titles and Taxes

CLEAR TITLES will be delivered to all purchasers upon completion of contracts. No interest on deferred payments. Taxes and all assessments are fully paid on each lot and will be paid in full on all contracts before purchase. The rate is much less than one dollar per year per lot. Purchasers will be required to pay no taxes until due in May, 1927, for the year from January 1st, 1926, to January 1st, 1927.

Full Beach Privileges

Lots are 30x100 feet and each lot carries with it full beach privileges. A parkway of 15 feet, the public property of all lot owners, extends the full length of the property, a distance of approximately 390 feet. The parkway is in front of the property on the top of the rising bank overlooking the lake. Thirty-two foot roadways every two hundred feet through the property afford easy accessibility to the lake for all owners regardless of where individual lots are selected. All lots face one of the 32 foot roadways. A tract of fifteen lots, approximately 1500 feet, is reserved for a community building, a store and other buildings tended for the mutual convenience of all lot owners. This tract is situated on the main road through the property near the center of all lot locations.

A special fund made up from amounts taken from the purchase price of each lot sold will be used to erect buildings and otherwise improve the entire property to the mutual benefit of all lot owners.

It has been estimated that cottages can be built by purchasers on their lots at prices ranging from $250.00 to $600.00, depending on size and elegance.

Telegraph Subscription Included

A full year's subscription to the Telegraph is included in the purchase price of each lot. Sales are limited to five lots to any one individual. If more than one lot is purchased the purchaser can turn the extra subscriptions over to friends who are not regular subscribers to the Telegraph. Payments on all subscriptions will be credited every four months from down payments on the lots and from installments due monthly. Monthly payments can be made at the bank of the purchaser's choice or in case of out-of-town purchasers at the Telegraph office.

Representatives of Dixon Evening Telegraph, Janesville Gazette and Rockford Republic on the Community Property of the three papers.

Location in Order as Sales are Made

Early purchasers will have the choice of locations. Orders may be placed by mail or at the Circulation Department of the Telegraph. If you cannot call at the office a competent salesman, in possession of all the facts, will call on you at your convenience. If you are located outside of Dixon anywhere in the Telegraph territory, full particulars will be presented in person by special representatives of the Telegraph either to individuals or to group of individuals brought together for the purpose of discussing purchase of property. Group purchasers should arrange meetings and advise the Telegraph Circulation Department AT ONCE in order to be assured that the lots of their choice can be purchased in the location desired. Requests for information delivered in person will be taken care of in the order received at the Telegraph Circulation Department. It is not necessary to depend on mailed requests, wired or telephoned applications speed up the assignment of representatives to your advantage.

The Telegraph is Not in the Real Estate Business

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By GERTRUDE S. de WENTWORTH-JAMES

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros.

"The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted" with Irene Rich, is a picturization of this story by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Manning, with Diane Bled, and another couple, are driving to Calkin's Inn after the close of a country club dance celebrating Bob's twenty-first birthday. Bob is at the wheel with Diane leaning over him when the car crashes into a roadster, injuring a woman. The party is taken to a police station, where the sergeant is trying to fix responsibility. Meanwhile, Mrs. Manning and Margaret Patterson, who is in love with Bob, are following.

"All right. I haven't time for your life's history now." A new emphasis crept into the sergeant's tones. "But there was something wrong in that car long before you hit the roadster. The motorcycle policeman's report proves it. He trailed you for several miles. He says you were all over the road and nearly in the ditch a dozen times. What I want to know is, who was driving?"

For an instant Theo seemed upon the point of speaking. Then, with an effort, he sealed his lips, opening them only when the keen gaze of the sergeant seemed to bore into his innermost soul, to mutter nervously, if ungrammatically, "It wasn't me, sir, no, sir, it wasn't me."

Now the stern gaze of the sergeant shifted to rest upon Diane. Bereft of her usual coolness and composure, she seemed to shrink, a trembling, terrified girl, under its severity.

"Were you?" he demanded. Apparently she could not meet his eyes. Her own swept the room as if in frantic search of aid in her plight. Suddenly she shook her head wildly.

"No, not," she cried. Then, quick as a flash, turned upon Bob, and her accusation rang out unmistakable in its clearness. "He was!"

Again that same air of perplexity seemed to have claimed Bob. At her words he turned towards her and looked straight into her eyes. It was a strange look. There was bewilderment and pain in it. The world had changed so suddenly for him. His happy, carefree life seemed very far away.

But she, who had merely related a fact, seemed to flinch and quail under his glance, the poised and self-assurance which had been such a part of her being forgotten.

With never a word Bob turned from her.

And still, as if not fully satisfied with what she had done, Diane turned back to Theo and grew almost hysterical in the persistence of her accusation.

"It was he. It was Bob who was driving! Wasn't it, Theo? You know he was driving, don't you, Theo?"

Under her questions Theo shifted nervously upon his feet, shot a frightened glance at Bob and finally stared at the stern visage of the officer of the law as if fascinated.

"Yes—it was—" His voice trailed off into a whisper.

As if satisfied, the sergeant frowned and gave his attention to Bob.

"If that woman dies, Manning, it will take all of your pull to get you out of this mess."

"Dies!" It was as if Bob could not believe his ears. Indeed, as if there were very much about the situation in which he found himself which he could not reconcile.

Now a sudden movement of the sergeant and a sound from the door attracted his attention. John Manning entered. Plainly shaken by anxiety, his face was ghastly white, and he paused for an instant as if to collect himself for the ordeal which was to follow. Then he moved forward, to stop before Bob and gaze into his face.

Yet such was his emotion that he seemed at a loss for words. What thoughts were his at the moment? Inured by the experience of years to similar scenes amidst such surroundings, the meaning of it all must have recurred to him with redoubled force. Here was the machinery of the law erected by the people of the state for their own protection, just as he had been chosen by these same people as their sworn representative in the enforcement of their laws. To him these proceedings had always had a solemn majesty, his part in their equitable application a solemn trust. His to see that the clear course of justice was unswayed, its penalties applied without fear or favor. Yet now, within the very shadow of the law, with its firm clutches poised above him, stood his son—the pride of his heart, the hope of his coming years.

Within him John Manning's high sense of justice, his cold, judicial mind was arrayed against his heart; his professional honor was set off against his parental love. And even more, for there was Ellen, his own beloved, to whom the welfare and happiness of the boy was dearer than life itself.

Under such circumstances it was not strange that John Manning's lips were sealed as he faced his son. What words could express his thoughts? What sentences could picture the battle waging within his breast?

Yet even amidst the turmoil of feeling which shook him he must have taken pride in the bearing of his son. For at that moment Bob carried himself bravely and met the gaze of his father unflinchingly.

Only for a moment did John hesitate before his son. He moved towards the sergeant, his face grim and resolute. Leaning towards that official, he was again a lawyer, the chosen representative of the people considering the facts laid before him calmly and dispassionately and, most remarkable of all under the circumstances, impersonally.

So he was engaged when again the door was opened and Ellen appeared.

"Bob!" she cried at sight of her son, and again, "Bob!" Heedless of all else in the room, she rushed towards him with outstretched arms.

He stiffened, flushing hotly at sight of her, but as she reached him and gathered him in her arms he yielded promptly to her embrace.

So she clasped him to her breast, giving expression to countless, inarticulate expressions of endearment and patting him fondly upon the back.

Suddenly she drew back and gazed anxiously into his face.

"You are not hurt, Bob?" He shook his head.

"But in that awful wreck how did you ever manage to escape without a scratch?"

"I don't know," he whispered huskily.

"It was marvelous—it seems almost too good to be true. All the way here I have been thinking, picturing the most dreadful things which might have happened to you, dear—fearing to find you hurt in some awful way. Perhaps it would be just as well if we have a doctor look you over—there might be internal injuries!"

"I haven't a scratch, mother, honestly."

Once more she enfolded him in her arms. Her son was safe and sound. Beside the wonder of her relief over that fact all else mattered little. But now, as she released him, she seemed to give some thought to his surroundings and to her husband at the police sergeant's desk.

"Did you ever hear of such a narrow escape as Bob had, John?" she asked.

"It was marvelous," he agreed, but there was a curious restraint in his manner as he spoke.

"The mere shock of such an experience must have been terrible," she continued.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BARBARA HAWLEY, 25, self-willed and talented, gives up her fiancé, BRUCE REYNOLDS, an architect, and gets a job on the Chicago Telegraph, in order to see life.

ANDREW McDERMOTT, managing editor of the Telegraph, is a former friend of her father's.

She makes friends with BOB JEFFRIES, police reporter, and has many thrilling adventures, including a dinner party at the Lighthouse Inn, on a night when a prominent man commits suicide there. Barbara covers the story and picks up a red scarf left in the room by the dead man's unknown woman companion. At the roadside she also makes the acquaintance of JEROME RALL, man about town.

Bruce has joined the real estate firm of Manners, Stone and Reynolds, which is promoting the Vale Acres section of town, a mammoth real estate enterprise. Bruce becomes acquainted with MRS. LYDIA STACY, rich widow, who refuses to invest in Vale Acres when Bruce fails to respond to her love-making.

Barbara receives and prints in the love column many letters from a girl named Violetta, who wishes to know how to attract a "young gent socially superior." On Christmas day, Barbara is handed a clipping to follow up for the paper. It tells of the marriage of Bruce to VIOLETTA CRANBY, an employee of a box factory.

Barbara rushes for the file of the Telegraph and begins to read the love column for weeks back.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI
The leaves of the papers rustled. Barbara's hands were shaking so she could scarcely read the words. She laid the file on the desk and crouched over it.

Beginning at a date about three months before, the letters of Violetta ran through the love column. From bare initials and eyelash curlers to red satin wedding dress, they painted a graphic picture of the girl who wrote them. They told her love story, starkly, without shadings.

Barbara read the answers even more eagerly than the letters. Now and then her mouth twisted curiously.

The noise in the office increased, as the morning advanced, but she did not hear it. The rush of the first edition swirled about the corner where she sat, and then the second, the little notes from Violetta and her own flippant replies.

At last she had read them all. She got up and put the file back in its place. Wells was calling her. "Where have you been, Miss Hawley? I've been shouting for you for half an hour."

Barbara sighed. "Sorry," she said. "I didn't hear you."

He handed her a list of telephone calls to make, then looked sharply at her. "What's the matter? Are you ill, or just tired? You look all in."

"It's nothing," said Barbara wearily. "I'll be all right."

She was never able to remember afterwards what she did the rest of that morning. There were telephone calls, but she did not know whom Bob Jeffries asked her questions, but she looked at him blankly and did not answer. Somebody gave her a story to re-write, and she was sent to some building to get an obituary.

At noon, she was sitting at her desk, her hands in her lap. Wells stopped and looked at her curiously as he went after his hat and coat. "Going home?" he asked. "Can I take you anywhere? You're looking George Martin, Delbert Dewhart and Miss Katherine Keohler were entertained New Years at the home of Miss Helen Leffelman.

Helen Leffelman and brother Arthur spent Tuesday and Wednesday at the home of their uncle Amos Leffelman.

Mrs. Amos Leffelman and children motored to Ottawa one day last week and visited Mrs. Walter McNinch at the tent colony.

Mrs. Ella Crawford is on the sick list.

Mrs. Gertrude Read of Denver, Colo., was a guest of the Clark sisters a few days last week.

Miss Ella Theiss has gone to Chicago where she will study nursing at the St. Joseph's hospital. Her mother Mrs. Ernest Theiss and her sister Mildred and Joseph July of Compton accompanied her to the city.

The Sublette Woman's club held a watch party at the church parlors on Dec. 31, 1925. The meeting opened in the usual form and after the business session, Mrs. Barton and Mrs. Lett had charge of the program which consisted of the following numbers:

Piano solo—Dorothy Utch. Group of songs—Mrs. Barton. Reading—Mrs. Mattie Long. Solo—Mildred Long. Piano solo—Dorothy Long. Remarks—Rev. John E. Hopkins.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served by the house committee. Those present were the members and their families, Mrs. J. P. Graham and children of Heyworth and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Billings.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 14 at the church parlors with Mrs. McNinch as hostess. Mrs. O. F.

very white. No fit subject for Christmas dinner."

Barbara shook her head. "No, thank you, Mr. Wells. I'll get home all right. I'm just tired." She leaned heavily against her desk as she rose. Wells frowned. "Don't get sick, Miss Hawley. You're one of our best men, you know. Better stay home tomorrow and rest."

"I don't want to rest. That's the last thing I want," cried Barbara, with desperation in her voice. The room again and again. Footsteps sounded in the hall outside. When Mrs. Hawley pushed the door of Barbara's room open, Barbara was crying, her body limp on the rug, the clippings clutched in one hand.

Mrs. Hawley crossed the room hurriedly and bent over her daughter. "What on earth, Barbara?" she gasped.

Barbara thrust the clippings toward her mother. For a few moments there was silence.

When Mrs. Hawley adjusted her glasses and puckered her brows over the letters.

"What's it all about, Barbara?" she asked at last. "You're not crying over these?"

Barbara sat up and wiped her eyes. "Yes," she replied, "I am, the more fool I. They're from the girl that Bruce married yesterday. He is the 'superior young gent' she speaks of. And I've helped her land him."

Mrs. Hawley gasped. "Why, Barbara, how do you know?"

"Because I was asked to write a note of the wedding this morning. And I recognized her name—Violetta Cranby. I oughtn't to care. But I do. Yet I think it's funny, too. For me to give her directions how to catch him, all the time thinking he was some cheap two-for-a-penny sheik. And it was Bruce—Bruce!"

She seized the clippings and began to sort them out. "Just listen here. I tell her to be sympathetic and self-effacing. She writes back that it worked and he wants to take her out."

"Then I advise her how to charm him on their first date. She comes back with a request for more instructions in arousing serious intentions. I tell her flippantly to be 'all woman', to drop her own interests and listen to him talk about his—his useless love—to be a true helpmate and friend. Isn't that gorgeous irony? I tell her to do all the things I'd never do, and she follows directions and wins the only man I ever wanted. And look at this!"

"But you didn't want him for yourself, Barbara," reminded her mother.

"Oh, well, I'm not crying about that. It's everything. I'm so tired these days that it doesn't take much to start the tears. I like my job, but I'm so sick of it sometimes that I have to bite my lips to keep from screaming."

"It's all work and no fun. And I'm losing all my friends, because I've no time to give them. Yet I'm afraid to stop for a moment. It's a habit."

Mrs. Hawley looked thoughtful. "There are penalties to pay for everything in life, Barbara. My guess is that if you'd married Bruce, you'd be even more tired of housework than you are of newspaper work now."

"I suppose so," Barbara rose with an impatient shrug and began to prepare for bed. As she turned to kiss her mother good night, she exclaimed. "Why, mother, you look awful. Have you been overworking on that old Christmas dinner?"

Mrs. Hawley turned away and walked quickly to the door. "Don't worry about me, Babs, I'm just not feeling spry."

"Don't get up in the morning," begged Barbara. "I'll get my own breakfast."

The Telegraph staff came to work next day with a typical Christmas hangover. Everybody had had too much to eat and some had had no sleep.

The result was a doleful stupor reigning over the entire office.

McDermott called Barbara into his office in the afternoon and handed her a card. It stated that "Miss Barbara Hawley will review plays at the Blackstone for the Telegraph hereafter."

"Present that to the ticket office," he said, "and you will be given the press seats from now on."

Barbara's face brightened. "Thank you," she cried. "I've been wanting to do play reviews ever since I came on the staff. But what's become of Byers?"

"More than he can do. I promised to give this theater to you. It'll be good experience for you. You can start tonight."

Barbara went back into the outer office with a brighter face than she had worn for some time.

It was late when Barbara arrived at the Interurban station that afternoon. The pocket of her coat held two theater tickets, and she carried a corsage bouquet in a box. At the telephone booth she ordered a taxicab for seven-thirty. Her first evening of play-reviewing was to be a gala night.

It seemed to her that the street was very dark as she alighted from the car in Evanston and started toward home.

When she neared the house, she saw that the house was dark, except for a light in her mother's room upstairs. She unlocked the door hurriedly and stepped into the hall. At sound of the door, someone had switched the light on from upstairs.

A woman came running down the steps. Barbara recognized her as Mrs. Bryan, the new next-door neighbor.

"Don't be frightened," said the woman. "We hope it's nothing too serious, but your mother has had some kind of stroke."
